Though the most common materials of choice are the metals silver, gold, and bronze, Ana also incorporates some base metals, paper, wood, and photographs into her art. Her work is more than just a brightly colored coating of paint on canvas, it is an act of interpretation. With no beginning and no end, she is constantly finding new ways to interpret her surroundings through art. I met Ana two years ago when I was visiting a gallery in Carpinteria. She was a young artist at the time. I can still remember how her eyes lit up when she saw me and introduced herself. She was shy about her art, as she quickly realized I was also. We became friends and as I visited her studio more often, I was amazed at what she could accomplish with her talents and her love for her art. I was always excited to find new pieces to add to my portfolio. Today, Ana
